

Dallas Mavericks head coach Rick Carlisle gets Hockaday students Alexandria Shaw, Audrey McManemin, Alexandra McGeoch, Alexandra Crosnoe, and Gigi Lancaster involved in a musical exercise on Nov. 15.

Carlisle, Vincelli Jazz It Up

Dallas Mavericks head coach and University Park resident Rick Carlisle and musician Joseph Vincelli conducted a music assembly at the Hockaday School on Nov. 15 to show students the importance of self-discipline when learning to play an instrument.

“Music can be enriching, and what goes into learning an instrument — or anything for that matter — will follow you throughout life,” said Carlisle, who is a pianist.

Vincelli said the joy he finds in performing, and the ease with which he plays flute and saxophone, are the reward for all of his hard work.

“Playing music has not always been easy,” he said. “I have given up fun things in order to practice.”

— From Staff Reports

Family Honored

